

The Suffolk Times.

Thursday, March 10, 1983

V.L. CXXVI No. 34

Serving Southold Town, Shelter Island Town and the Incorporated Village of Greenport

35

yn Plans ratorium arings

RONNIE WACKER
D-If you weren't listening you might have missed it. Among 39 Town Board resolutions only a handful of people braved bl's winds and rains to hear - ing for a nine-month full-town on development of major and visions.

Councilman Ray Edwards, it ed by Councilman John Nick- opposed a moratorium since s first introduced last June. sure a moratorium is the way s but agrees that the town is at ere something has got to be members of the original oratorium Committee were the meeting. Ruth Oliva, the North Fork Environmen- and Frank Bear both congra- board on its action.

st empty boardroom was a ne from the packed meetings onths, at which townspeople en emotionally, to the need for evelopment until the town's is revised. This is expected to 8 months.

ight's meeting, however, had s and few witnesses. Even two ilmen, Larry Murdock and nsend were unable to be there, gns of an uneventful meeting. rd settled into work promptly, rough 39 resolutions in a minutes, with time out for a ng on Jem Realty's request for f zone in a 62-acre proposed t.

o Fanfare on Motion torium resolution was No. 32. amble, Councilman Edwards s offered a full-town' mora- re same expressionless tones pers always use for resolution- he rest of the Board sat The half-dozen spectators, in- press, made no stir.

meeting Mr. Nickles said he favor a moratorium, but that come to the juncture where as to be done." The Planning been inundated with applica- ovisions, he said, and while

(continued on page 19)

Closer to Heaven

Renovation specialist Peter Stoutenburgh of Cutchogue and LILCO linemen George Stapon and Emil Fosse took to the skies to begin removal of the steeple on the Presbyterian Church in Cutchogue Wednesday morning. The steeple and its weathervane, damaged by recent storms, were removed to be rebuilt and replaced. LILCO donated the use of its cherrypicker for the removal.

Times photo by Judy Ahren